2 In August this year Tatas had written to the Thana Electric Supply Co,, requesting them to furnish list of consumers whose supply was liable to be curtailed or cut off in an emergency. This condition was being imposed on motive power consumers during 1949 and earlier but recent sanctioned were not subject to such conditions.

3 Tatas were, therefore, informe that condition of disconnection of curtailment of supply was not sp specifically impossed on recent sanctions and that under power given to it under Bombay Electricity (Emergency Power) Amendment Act., 1949, Govt. can impose any restrictions on supply or consumption of elecy. In case of consumers when necessity arose. Tatas were, therefore, requested that to maintain a list of consumers whose supply can be curtailed or disconnected in emergency, Tatas stated that all the distributing licencsees should be asked to prepare such a list and they have forwarded a specimen from on which the licensees should be asked to state the figures of consumption and reasons why the necessary curtailment in each case has not been attained.

4 Government has since issued orders on retaining of electricity and the consumption of electricity is accordingly being curtailed by motive power and domestic consumbers. These measures will prove adequate to meet the present emeergency. Tatas may therefore, be asked whether it is necessary to pursue the question of preparation of the list.

Information asked for is already been collected and as stated by Tatas only remarks are to be given. The information regarding be obtained from all Tata system licensees.

For a prolonged emergency (outage of 1 or 2 or 3 units for 2 months say) these lists would be useful They should be prepared for "Large" consumers (say 100 KW. or over connected load recently connected.
